

I'm outraged by Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary. It's a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation, and a violation of the public trust "we" supposedly granted to these media organizations in the first place. When fewer and fewer organizations control more and more of the media, democracy is seriously endangered. This action by Sinclair Broadcasting is just another piece of evidence in a long string of events attesting to this fact.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
